.10.0, is the world's leading on-line community of Adobe Certified Design Experts (ACDEs) and specialists. This is a collection of collected questions, answers and tips from the users of LiveCycle Designer to help and guide you to the solution of your design related issues. We welcome any tip or question from our community. We are happy to be a part of it. However, be sure to check out our user agreement. You can ask questions, answer questions, discuss features and new product announcements on the Adobe Community. Use the feedback forum to report bugs and post feature requests. Nuno, I agree with you. First, for beginning, I recommend you to read the tutorials. By the way, many times I found a solution to my problems by myself and then I found the answer in the tutorials and finally I discovered the solution in a post. Second, when you are working on a complex project, maybe it is better to design your project with other ways (if you have all the experience you can use Xpage), but when you don't have the experience, try to design as much as you can using LiveCycle. In that way you will learn and get experience on new technologies and will learn to work with other people using the best tools you can use for your project. This is the best way to learn. Third, I recommend you to use the project template to get up and running quickly. I am not a designer or programmer. Just trying to learn. Having said that, I have just finished creating a form with a data extension. I have it all pretty much done. When I click on that last button that creates the "final" form it gives me this error. I have tried with the latest version on Adobe, using XML and SP fields, and still get the same error. I have been searching the forums and have not been able to find anything helpful. Thanks again for your help. I am using LiveCycle Designer 9.1.0 I created a form, named it "AdminForm" I tried to create the "AdminFormDataExt" in the same way I did the "AdminForm" data extension.Q:
